

Financial Services Regulatory Reform in the Biden Administration: Key Areas of Focus

By John Banes, Luigi L. De Ghenghi, Randall D. Guynn, Jai R. Massari, Gabriel D. Rosenberg, Margaret E. Tahyar, Zachary J. Zweihorn, Joseph A. Hall, Betty Moy Huber, David Zilberberg, Kyoko Takahashi Lin, Charles Shi & Veronica M. Wissel on November 13, 2020

POSTED IN ADMINISTRATIVE LAW, BANK CAPITAL, BANK REGULATION, BIDEN TRANSITION, CANNABIS BANKING, CFPB, CFTC, COMMUNITY REINVESTMENT ACT, FDIC, FEDERAL RESERVE, FSOC, LIQUIDITY, M&A, NYDFS, OCC, PAYMENTS, SEC, STRESS TESTING, U.S. BASEL III, U.S. CONGRESS, VOLCKER RULE

On November 9, 2020, we released our deck “Financial Services Regulatory Reform in the Biden Administration: Key Areas of Focus.” This deck describes our view of the road ahead for financial regulatory reform under a Biden Presidency and a Republican Senate. We see most of the action coming from the regulators, not Congress. If the Senate ultimately turns Democratic, that view may change and we will update this deck.

The deck is available here.

Associate Jessica Walker and Legal Assistants Eliza Hering, Ellie Krossa and Andrew Xiang contributed.