

The Road Ahead for Financial Regulatory Reform in a Time of Democrats in Control

By John Banes, Luigi L. De Ghenghi, Randall D. Guynn, Jai R. Massari, Daniel Stipano, Gabriel D. Rosenberg, Margaret E. Tahyar, Zachary J. Zweihorn, Kyoko Takahashi Lin & Veronica M. Wissel on January 13, 2021

POSTED IN ADMINISTRATIVE LAW, ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING, BANK CAPITAL, BANK REGULATION, BIDEN TRANSITION, CANNABIS BANKING, CFPB, CFTC, COMMUNITY REINVESTMENT ACT, EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION, FDIC, FEDERAL RESERVE, FSOC, LIQUIDITY, M&A, MIDNIGHT REGULATIONS, OCC, PAYMENTS, SEC, STRESS TESTING, U.S. BASEL III, U.S. CONGRESS, VOLCKER RULE

Today, we released our deck “The Road Ahead for Financial Regulatory Reform in a Time of Democrats in Control.” This deck describes our view of the road ahead for financial regulatory reform under a Biden Presidency, and updates the deck we published shortly after the 2020 election to reflect the Democratic majority in both houses of Congress.

The deck is available here.

Associates Tyler Senackerib and Jessica Walker and Legal Assistants Eliza Hering, Ellie Krossa and Wenjia Yu contributed.